

Red Bulgaria Now Declares 15 Protestant Leaders Were Traitors, Spies

Sofia, Bulgaria, Feb. 11 (AP) — Communist-governed Bulgaria is going to put 15 Protestant ministers and officials on trial soon on charges of treason, violating currency laws and spying for Britain and the United States.

Deputy Foreign Minister Vladimir Topencharov said the churchmen already had "fully confessed" to the spy charges.

The government announced the names of those arrested for the first time last night, disclosed the indictments and named 12 American and British churchmen, educators and officials who it said acted as "contacts" in the spying activities. As early as January 6, Dimitar Iliev, Director of Cults, had disclosed that "some" Protestant clergymen were under arrest.

Red Persecution

In New York an official of the Northern Baptist convention, President Truman's denomination, said the charges were a "terrible thing" and bracketed them with the treason trial of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, Roman Catholic primate of Hungary, as part of a Communist "persecution of all religions—Protestant, Catholic or Jews."

The last church census in 1934 listed 8,371 Protestants in Bulgaria, compared to 5,000,000 members in the Greek Orthodox church, the national faith.)

The fifteen indicted are leaders of the United Evangelical Church. Represented in the church are the Methodist, Baptist, Pentecostal and Congregationalist faiths.

Vassil Ziakov, head of the Congregational church in Bulgaria and religious representative of the United Evangelical church, was alleged to be the "heart" of the treasonable activity.

Others Indicted

Yanko Ivanov, his deputy and supervisor of Methodist churches in Bulgaria.

Nikola Mihailov, head of the Baptists.

Georgi Chernev, head of the Pentecostal church.

The four named are members of the supreme council of the United Evangelical church in Bulgaria.

The other eleven are Protestant ministers.

In addition, Topencharov said two or three more trials of Protestants are to be held.

POLTRYMEN TO ORGANIZE COUNTY GROUP

Plans to organize an Adams county poultry raisers' association were outlined Thursday evening at a meeting of poultrymen held in the court house.

March 7 was set as the date for a meeting, which will probably be held at the court house, when the county organization will be brought into existence.

The need for such a group was outlined at an Agriculture Extension association poultry meeting Thursday by Roy E. Heckelbauer, near Arendtsville, one of the county's leading poultrymen and president of the state poultrymen's association.

Dossin Speaks

Heckelbauer pointed out the success of the Adams County Fruit Growers' organization in providing information for the growers and helping them meet their problems on a county level. A similar unit for poultrymen could serve the same purposes, he added, stating that the number of persons in the county who raise chickens can be counted in the hundreds. With most of those present voting to enter such an organization, the group decided to set up plans to interest others and organize in March.

C. O. Dossin, State College specialist, spoke on a number of matters concerning poultry management. He urged vaccination against New Castle disease, which he said, has become very prevalent in Adams county. Vaccination should occur when the chicks are from five to 12 weeks of age. No vaccination should be given while the chicks

Former County Resident Victim Of Western Storm

Mrs. Mary Stambaugh, East Berlin, recently received a letter from her brother, Michael Trimmer, a son of the late Peter Trimmer, well known East Berlin resident, telling of his harrowing experiences when one of the tragic western blizzards struck his home at Rocky Springs ranch near Parowan, Utah.

"I have been snowed in many times in the years I have lived here," the letter said "but this is the worst—12 days of it—with the snow over five feet deep on the level and still snowing."

Cattle Frozen In Piles

In a letter written the following day, Trimmer said: "Stopped snowing at noon. The bulldozers and snowplows got through to me and we took the truck in for food, medicines and supplies. Bulldozers, snowplows and trucks ran by night and 'Operation Haylift' by day. The cattle are too weak to eat the food dropped into their midst. Over a thousand head of cattle and sheep were frozen together in one huge pile. Just one more week of this and my livestock will be completely wiped out."

"I sure wish the sun would shine just for a little while. We have three more months of winter ahead and as things stand now, most anything can happen. But when this is over, we are going to leave here."

"It's now five o'clock in the morning and I must get a few hours rest before I start out to the stock again. More just keep dying every night."

'FELLOWSHIP DAY' MARKED AT SEMINARY

One hundred and forty-four representatives of six educational institutions attended the sixth annual Fellowship Day program and dinner Thursday at the Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary.

Students were present from Lenoir-Rhyne college of North Carolina; Wagner college, Staten Island; Susquehanna university at Selinsgrove; Washington and Jefferson college, Washington, Pa.; Ursula college, East Orange, N. J., and Gettysburg college.

During the morning the students attended classes at the seminary and at noon took part in the chapel hour in the Church of the Abiding Presence. Dr. Abel Ross Wentz, president of the seminary, preached at the service. Following a luncheon at the refectory the group met in conferences with the various professors at the seminary and from 3 until 4:30 o'clock were entertained at tea by the "Wives of the Seminary" organization.

Those enrolled are: Jackie Codori, James Coleman, Jack Weaver, John Fink, Fred Walters and John Washington.

Following the regular meeting the Scouts gave a demonstration of scouting for their parents. It included various uses of the Scout neckerchief, packing and unpacking a knapsack and bed-roll, cooking eggs with home-manufactured fuel and quartet and group singing. The Scouts also presented the Candlelight Investiture ceremony for the advancement of Scouts, pledge of allegiance to the flag and other Scout ceremonials.

All members of the troop were instructed to be at the Scout room Saturday morning at 10 o'clock to participate in the Boy Scout pilgrimage to the Lincoln shrine here. They will also participate in the relay-torch-bearer feature of the day's exercises at which Governor James H. Duff will be the principal speaker.

Dr. J. Walter Coleman spoke briefly on the importance of Scout training.

Ray M. Hoffman Is Charged With Riding Horseback On Park Ave.

A hearing was being held before U. S. Commissioner Edward B. Bullett early this afternoon in which Ray M. Hoffman, former president of the Gettysburg borough council, is charged with riding horseback on Reynolds avenue, on the battlefield.

The charge was filed by Thomas R. Treher, park warden, and it was mailed to Mr. Hoffman by Commissioner Bullett before whom the warden filed the alleged violation.

The charge declares that Hoffman "on or about January 23 . . . did ride horseback over a certain automobile road in the Gettysburg National Military Park to wit: Reynolds avenue, between the Fairfield road and the Lincoln Highway; said travel being unnecessary for ingress to and egress from private property and not incidental to any authorized trail trip in violation of Section 2.34 (B) of the Rules and Regulations of said Park."

Mr. Hoffman said that he had been riding horseback "on or about" that day and he had ridden around the trails at the Gettysburg Country Club and vicinity and that he emerged on the Fairfield road. He said that he was returning to his farm near the old Gettysburg airport and had crossed from the Fairfield road to the farm traveling over Reynolds avenue. He said that he kept his horse on the paved avenue and that at no time did he ride on the berm of the road.

The former town council president engaged Attorney Richard A. Brown to defend him at this afternoon's hearing.

PUC APPROVES NEW CROSSING ON W. LINCOLN

The Pennsylvania Utility Commission has approved the construction of a grade crossing at West Lincoln avenue across the tracks of the Reading railway company.

According to the order issued February 7 and received by borough officials today, the Reading company will handle the construction of the grade crossing over its tracks while the borough will install the approaches to the crossing. According to the order, the borough will pay the railroad for the macadamizing of the track crossing.

The cost of construction of the crossing, to be borne by the railway, will be $2,460, according to details given in the order. At the spot where Lincoln avenue will cross the rails there are one main track, two yard tracks and one cross over track permitting trains to go from one track to another, the records show. According to the plan approved by the PUC the crossover track will be moved from the crossing.

Provide For Protection

To protect the crossing, a member of the crew of each train crossing the intersection will have to go ahead of the train and give warning with a red flag during the daytime and with red or white lantern at night, following the system in effect at those crossings in town now which do not have regular watchmen.

A breakdown of the expected cost to the railroad was given as "rehabilitating track," $405; installation of guard planks, $470; crossing paving, $495; paving, $215; grading, $10; stone base, $55; relocation of crossover, $460, and reflectorized crossing signs, $350.

30 Trains Daily

Under the order the Reading company will close the present crossing about 400 feet south of the proposed West Lincoln avenue crossing and will barricade that crossing which is maintained privately at present. The town will grade up to the crossing on both sides and put in approach warning signs.

The order was given as a result of a hearing in December held before the PUC on the matter.

According to the order 30 trains a day pass the crossing, six through trains and 24 shifting. All movements of trains over the crossing are to be at "yard speed," the order provides.

TWO CRASHES ON SLIPPERY ROADS

Slippery highways caused by Thursday's snowfall were blamed for two accidents, one of which one of the vehicles involved, overturned. No one was injured in either of the accidents, authorities who investigated said.

A pickup truck operated by Harry B. Troxell, 37, of Emmitsburg, going east on the Bonneauville road, skidded about two miles east of Gettysburg at 12:45 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and collided with the car of Irene Gebhart, 21, of Gettysburg R. 5. The Gebhart car was proceeding west.

After the collision, the truck overturned on its side, state police of the Gettysburg substation reported. Damage to the truck and estimated at $100 and to the Gebhart automobile at $200.

A jeep station wagon driven by Jack M. Grossman, York, skidded and went out of control in front of the Topper service station, East Lincoln avenue and Harrisburg road, at 2:45 p.m. Thursday, according to borough police, and struck the car of John A. Mauss, Biglerville R. 1.

Damage to the Grossman car was estimated at $20 and to the Mauss car at $70.

GI Says Axis Sally Let Him See She Did Not Wear Underclothes

Washington, Feb. 11 (P)—One side of the "Axis Sally" story is nearing the end.

It's the government's side. It paid Mildred E. Gillars, 48, as a betrayer of her country for Nazi cash.

Before the end of another week the other side—"Axis Sally"—may open its inning. Cross-examination of prosecution witnesses by Miss Gillars' attorney has indicated that the defense in the treason trial will portray her as a loyal American who was forced to broadcast Nazi propaganda during the war.

John J. Kelley, Jr., the chief government prosecutor, expects to finish his case by the end of next week at latest.

James J. Laughlin, Miss Gillars' attorney, already has told the jury that "Axis Sally" will tell her own story from the witness stand.

The third week of the trial ended yesterday. It was much like the two before—play-backs of Miss Gillars' wartime broadcasts, witnesses identifying her voice and telling of her being interviewed by her in hospitals and prisoner of war camps.

The indictment accuses Miss Gillars of interlarding messages of Americans to their relatives at home with Nazi propaganda.

Michael Evans, who parachuted behind the German lines on D-day and was captured, was one of the week's final witnesses. He said Miss Gillars gave him 45-year-old cognac and a cigarette before interviewing him. He said she also let him see

300 UNIONISTS STAGE BATTLE; 20 ARE HURT

East Moline, Ill., Feb. 11 (AP) — About 20 persons were injured, including two top officials of the CIO Auto Workers, in a 20-minute pitched battle yesterday between some 300 members of two rival CIO unions.

Both officials were arrested after the bloody brawl at the gates of the East Moline works of the International Harvester company. On one side were some 70 UAW organizers. They were opposed by more than 200 workers at the plant, members of the United Farm Equipment Workers Union (FE).

Thirteen of the injured received treatment at a hospital for bloody and broken noses, cuts, broken arms, bashed heads and cracked ribs. Only one was a plant worker. The UAW unionists injured included John W. Livingston of Detroit, UAW vice president and director of the union's agricultural implement department, and Pat Greathouse of Chicago, UAW regional director.

2 Are Arrested

Later Livingston and Greathouse were arrested on a disorderly conduct complaint signed by Arvid Sheets, president of FE Local 104. Sheets said he will ask state warrants today, charging the two CIO officials with inciting a riot. They were summoned to appear today before a police magistrate on the disorderly conduct charges.

Sheets said about 70 UAW organizers appeared at the gates at the close of the day shift to distribute leaflets in the UAW union's campaign to absorb the FE. The FE, which holds bargaining rights at the plant for about 2,500 workers, has refused to abide by an order of the National CIO to merger with the UAW.

Livingston said the UAW organizers were "attacked by a gang of goons that outnumbered us at least three to one." He said they used crowbars, pieces of steel and other weapons.

Red Bulgaria

The indictment named 12 Americans and Englishmen as "agents of foreign intelligence and representatives of international reaction" who visited Bulgaria at various times since 1944 and contacted the 15 accused either directly or indirectly. These were:

Cyril Black, professor of Russian history at Princeton university, who has been an advisor to the U.S. delegation in the United Nations Balkan commission.

John Evans Horner, former acting U.S. political representative at Sofia.

Louis Beck, present U.S. commercial representative here.

Dr. J. Hutchison Cockburn, director of reconstruction and interchurch aid of the World Council of Churches, former moderator of the Church of Scotland.

Bishop Paul Garber, of Geneva, Switzerland, Methodist bishop of 11 European nations and former dean of the Divinity school at Duke university.

Robert Tobias, of the World Council of Churches in Geneva.

Elain Cooper, former principal of the Methodist - sponsored Lovech college in Sofia, now a teacher at Bridgeport, Conn.

Maj. Thompson, a former member of the British mission to Bulgaria.

Robert Strong, Col. Thompson and Stanley Andrew, none of whom was otherwise identified.

Typical Red Charges

Emlyn Turner, Miss Cooper's successor at Lovech college. A school for girls of high school age.

The four defendants who are members of the supreme council of the Evangelical church were specifically accused of voluntarily organizing a spy network and collecting and delivering to foreign intelligence representatives information on economics, military and political matters.

They were declared to have invited foreign intervention in overthrowing the present regime.

Security Program Gets First Study

Washington, Feb. 11 (AP) — The House Ways and Means committee today put tax legislation aside at least temporarily, in the face of the new tax-raise plea from President Truman.

The committee voted to give first consideration to the President's proposals for a vast expansion of the social security program. Hearings were ordered beginning February 28.

This might mean that no tax bill will be considered until May. A committee spokesman explained, however, that today's action does not mean the committee cannot take up a tax bill any time it pleases.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) of the Ways and Means committee already had forecast that the security program would come first. In general the capitol reception given Mr. Truman's call for quick action on a $4,000,000 tax boost was chilly.

Suggest Respite In Labor Relations

Washington, Feb. 11 (AP) — John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers boldly has suggested that the nation go without any labor relations law for a while. It said that in the meantime unions, management and government could together shape new legislation to replace the Taft-Hartley Act.

The miners' union took its stand in a formal statement to the Senate Labor committee. It called for immediate repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, which it said had proved to be "the first ugly, savage thrust of Fascism in America."

The Lewis proposal would leave a period when there were no restrictions on either labor unions or employers. But, the UMW said, this could not last more than a month, and "nothing could happen in that month, in the way of a strike, to harm the nation."

Fire Destroys Six Prison Cell Blocks

Atmore, Ala., Feb. 11 (AP) — Fire destroyed six cell blocks, dining rooms and offices at Atmore state prison farm today.

The new code also embodies heavier penalties for 169 other offenses, as well as smooths out ambiguities in the existing code.

Other new Senate bills would:

Appropriate $3,500,000 to state-aided hospitals for indigent care — Louis H. Farrel (R-Phila.); create a private subsidy fund in the state Commerce Department to furnish loans up to $2,000 to private home builders — Elmer Holland (D-Allegheny); increase from one to four cents an acre the annual state pay to counties for forest reserves within county boundaries — James Berger (R-Potter); and authorize the state to pay the cost of erecting traffic signals in second class townships — Lloyd H. Wood (R-Montgomery).

They were declared to have invited foreign intervention in overthrowing the present regime.

HUNGARIANS READY ANSWER TO "PROTESTS"

Budapest, Hungary, Feb. 11 (AP) —

The Hungarian government was known today to be preparing an answer to President Truman's statement yesterday and to that of Secretary Acheson on Wednesday, the day after Cardinal Mindszenty was sentenced to life imprisonment for treason.

There was no indication when the statement would be released nor when an answer to the British note, handed simultaneously to the government here and to the Hungarian ambassador in London by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, would be prepared.

Both the British and the Americans bitterly criticized the trial and the decision.

Lawyers for the cardinal and his fellow defendants were drafting their preliminary appeals but it did not appear probable that the case would be forwarded to the higher court until March.

Sentenced To Life

The people's court decision must first be printed.

The court forwards the appeal to the higher court.

The cardinal was sentenced to life in prison. The prosecutor asked a harsher sentence for him, and all but one of the others. For the cardinal that would mean death.

It is a principal of Hungarian law, however, that after two-thirds of a prisoner's term is served, he can be released by the Minister of Interior for good behavior. In the case of a life sentence, the custom is to consider reduction of the sentence or release after 15 years, conditioned on his good behavior during that time.

The Catholic press here so far has not commented on the Mindszenty case.

Hazank, the organ of the Peoples Democratic (Catholic) party, was not published this week as a result of the dissolution of the party after the flight of its leader, Istvan Barankovics, to Austria. It had been the only publication to voice opposition to the government.

Mrs. Ira S. Orner was hostess to

Mrs. Albert Slaybaugh, Aspers, has returned from a week's visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Guise, and family, Camp Hill.

MOVE TOWARD STRONGER TIES IN CHINA RULE

Nanking, Feb. 11 (AP) — A move toward strengthening the loose ties between the Nanking and Canton sections of the national government was announced today by a cabinet official.

Mr. Chien-cheng, deputy secretary general of the executive Yuan (cabinet), said a vice minister from each ministry and a vice minister of each national commission will arrive shortly in Nanking.

Acting President Li Tsung-jen is striving with little visible success for peace with the Communists and has said he will remain in Nanking.

Mr. Martin T. Walter and Mrs. Ned Walter, Biglerville R. D., and Mrs. Robert Eicholtz, of Arendtsville, were visitors in York Thursday.

The senior class of Biglerville high school will hold a food sale at the Lupp and Breighner store Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

The Friendship class of Trinity Bender's Evangelical and Reformed Sunday school, Biglerville, held its February meeting Thursday evening at the home of Miss Mildred Osborn. Miss Clara Myers, teacher of the class, conducted a devotional period. Included on the program was a solo by Mrs. Roy Lawver and readings by members of the class.

Reports from Red Cross

Canton government leaders have expressed unwillingness to make peace on the Red terms. Li will be made by the executive Yuan in Canton.

The miners' union took its stand in a formal statement to the Senate Labor committee. It called for immediate repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act, which it said had proved to be "the first ugly, savage thrust of Fascism in America."

The Lewis proposal would leave a period when there were no restrictions on either labor unions or employers. But, the UMW said, this could not last more than a month, and "nothing could happen in that month, in the way of a strike, to harm the nation."

Early reports from foreigners in Red territory north of the Yangtze of official behavior "more than correct" have been followed swiftly by evidence of new restrictions.

These apply to all phases of political, commercial, teaching and journalistic activities.

The Jayvee matmen of the schools will meet in the preliminary at 7 o'clock.

Meanwhile Coach "Hen" Bream will take his varsity dribblers to Easton for a clash with Lafayette. The Bullets nosed out the Leopards here January 15 by a 60-58 count in a thrilling extra period contest. A victory at Lafayette would go a long way in the Bullets' drive for the Middle Atlantic championship playoffs.

Pick Eight Teams

Eight teams of 27 members will be selected by a committee of three to participate in the playoffs. A pair of preliminary games will be played Wednesday, March 16, at Rockne hall, Allentown, and a pair on the same evening at Northeast junior high, Reading. The semifinals will be staged March 18 at the Palestra, Philadelphia, with the final on the following evening on the same floor.

The schools from which the eight outstanding teams will be selected include Seton Hall, LaSalle, Lafayette, Rutgers, Muhlenberg, Albright, Lebanon Valley, Bucknell, Susquehanna, Juniata, John Hopkins, Scranton, Dickinson, F. and M., Western Maryland, Washington, Ursinus, Swarthmore, Delaware, Haverford, PMC, Drexel, Lehigh, Moravian, West Chester and Gettysburg.

Johnny Yovicins will take his freshman dribblers to Hershey for a return game with Hershey Junior college on Saturday.

The college swimming team, visitors over Drexel here last week, clash with Swarthmore in the latter's tank on Saturday.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Feb. 11 (P)—Bob Mackinnon, who is playing a lot of basketball for Canisius, is touted as the best T-formation quarterback ever developed in the Buffalo area. . . . But Canisius doesn't let him play football. The same goes for Leroy Chollet, who is some shakes as a football runner. . . . The Louisville club is reported to be dropping the Kentucky state open tennis tournament because it spent too much money on a swimming pool. Well, a boatsman wouldn't have any use for a tennis racquet if he fell overboard. . . . Harry Westerby, who trained Ranger hockey teams for 20 years, now is trainer for the Spokane, Wash., Flyers, who recently ran up a string of 20 straight home victories. . . . Jim Gallagher, the Cubs' general manager, is reported to have gone "hog wild" over chess. Probably because that's one game where he can make a move without consulting Phil Wrigley, Charley Grimm and Red Smith.

SWITCHEROO
Clemson's Frank Howard, who has been hitting the banquet circuit since his team's Gator Bowl victory, comes up with a new version of the best way to pick a football game. . . . And he blames it on Peahed Walker of Wake Forest. . . . Peahed, says Frank, takes his squad out in the woods during the spring and tells them to start running. . . . The ones who run around the trees are tabbed as backfield men. . . . The guys who run right over the trees go into the line.

CLEANING THE CUFF
Eddie Doherty, president of the Red Sox-owned Louisville Colonels, has set a 450,000 attendance goal for the season. If he beats that, Eddie likely will be made a Kentucky general. . . . First robin of spring appeared yesterday when Cliff Bloodgood delivered the first copies of the 1949 "Who's Who in Baseball." . . . Jimmy Gooding, a featherweight who is drawing rave notices around Portland, Ore., attends Vanport college and does oil painting a la Mickey Walker. . . . Manager Dick Edwards claims that featherweight Red Top Davis is a career man—he makes a career of fighting Willie Pep."

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
YOUR THOUGHTS

It's the thoughts you think, from the moment when you awake in the morning, until you put your mind and body to rest at night, that control both your health and your happiness. Your thoughts are the one thing you cannot escape. They go with you everywhere. They are you!

How important, then, that they are happy constructive thoughts—thoughts that enrich you in mind and heart. Thoughts have an immediate effect upon the entire body.

Angry thoughts rush through the human system like a destructive storm through a city. But pleasant, inspiring thoughts affect the body as sunshine does the growing things of earth.

Your thoughts are your silent friends. They are ever with you, and you alone are able to make them always friendly. If you keep harboring thoughts that uplift you, you will be radiating influence everywhere you go—and you will go far, as well.

Probably the most damaging and disturbing of all thoughts are those of fear. Get rid of all thoughts of fear in your life and you will meet every emergency with courage and confidence. The best of all antidotes for fear is faith. Faith in yourself, faith in whatever befalls you, and faith in God. Faith is a triumphant thing. It has healed more sick minds and bodies than all the doctors and medicines ever have. Just put it to the test and learn.

The thoughts of the great thinkers of the world live on and on. We go to them, as recorded in books, and their creators live again for us! My library shelves are lined with thousands of books whose thoughts were once living men and women. They live for me the moment that I take one of these books in my hands and read.

What a wonderful line that is of Tennyson's—"Kind hearts are more than coronets, and simple faith than Norman blood!" You cannot have a kind heart without kind thoughts. Thoreau lived in a small cabin at Walden Pond, apparently alone—but he had his thoughts and he wrote them down and gave them to the world, for which the world eternally thanks him and honors his memory.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Courtesy—Friendliness."

"FREE SPEECH" OFTEN HARD TO DEFINE CLEARLY

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)

"Freedom of Speech" is a right for which liberty-loving men the world over will fight to the death.

But just what constitutes "Free Speech"? Where does free speech begin and unlicensed speech begin? That's not always easy to answer.

Sometimes a good deal depends on whether you grin when you make the speech. As they used to remark in the days of the old west: "Smile when you say that, pardner!"

I Like The Russians

Down in the south west the other night a meeting of landlords at Fort Worth evicted the principal speaker because of the nature of his remarks. The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported him as saying:

"I like the Russians. XX X I admire Joe Stalin. If he gives you his word, he will keep it."

At this point an ex-serviceman shouted: "Why don't you go live in Russia?" With that the sponsors of the meeting escorted the speaker from the platform amid angry mutterings from the crowd. The next day the speaker told a Star-Telegram reporter:

"If the time has come in America when I cannot say 'I admire Joe Stalin,' then I had just as soon leave the country."

Thin Line Separates

Did he exceed the rights of free speech? Well, let's pass that up with the observation that he was doggedly indiscreet.

Often a thin line separates free speech from the forbidden. I like the way the London police handle this problem. During the many years I lived in the British capital I often went of an evening to Hyde Park to listen to the soap-box orators, discussing colorfully if not accurately on all sorts of subjects, many of them political. Always policemen (bobbies, the English call them) were on duty for the speech-making—just in case.

Frequently you would hear a long-haired radical ranting against the government. He would damn it up and down and sideways. A bobby would stand by listening with a broad smile.

A Burning Issue

But had the speaker deviated from plain damning to a call for mob action by the crowd, then the bobby himself would have leaped into action. All a speaker would have had to do to get himself arrested would be to yell: "Let's go and get 'em!" He would be translating words into action.

Bolshevism has called for the overthrow of the United States government (and all other non-Communist governments) by force. The Reds have exhorted the mob to "go and get 'em." Therefore our government has decreed that Communism is subversive.

That's why we have a burning issue in the question of how schools and colleges should deal with Communism—if at all. Many educators hold that it's dangerous not to teach youth what Communism is, always emphasizing the fact that it is evil and subversive.

However, the moment that advocacy of Communism enters the teaching, the instruction becomes subversive in itself. The rights of free speech are exceeded.

SENATE STARTS 10-DAY TRUCE ON LABOR LAW

By MAX HALL

Washington, Feb. 11 (P)—Senators battling over a new labor law started a three-day truce today with 10 days of wordy hearings behind them and—so far as can be observed—nobody's mind changed.

On Monday the Senate Labor committee starts the second half of its hearings on the Truman administration's bill to repeal the Taft-Hartley law and substitute a law based on the original Wagner act.

The committee still is expected to approve the administration bill, which is sponsored by Chairman Elbert Thomas (D-Utah). There are eight Democrats in the group and only five Republicans.

Anybody's Guess

But what happens to the bill when it reaches the Senate floor for debate—probably some time in March—is anybody's guess. What the House of Representatives will do is another question mark.

Senator Humphrey (D-Minn.), a member of the Senate committee, and the CIO both denounced the Communist party for having the "fronteney" to send a statement to the committee opposing the Taft-Hartley act.

Humphrey, in an interview, and CIO Secretary James B. Carey, in a statement, both said the Communist really want to keep the law. The committee, meantime, threw the Communist statement in the waste basket and refused to put it in the record of the hearings.

Woodruff Randolph, president of the AFL International Typographical union, finished his testimony last night with a vigorous attack on the Taft-Hartley ban on the closed shop.

Denham Testifies

Senator Morse (R-Ore.) joined him, saying this provision has been productive of "much subterfuge and bootlegging in labor relations." He said a great many employers in the publishing and printing trades have continued "what amounts in practice to closed shop conditions." (In a closed shop, the employer agrees to hire only union members and fire anybody who loses his membership.)

At that, Chairman Thomas chimed in with: "When Congress passes a law which is an open invitation to so many people to break that law, we do something that inevitably ends in bad government."

Robert N. Denham, general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, testified some more. He has testified 11 hours during the last four days and will be called again next week.

Biased and Prejudiced

Senator Neely (D-W. Va.) yesterday called Denham a "biased and prejudiced" man who ought to be fired. When Denham took the witness chair last night, he said, without mentioning Neely, that he has always "tried to remain away from partisanship and prejudice," and thinks he has succeeded.

Denham had testified earlier that the Taft-Hartley law is "basically sound" though "not perfect."

That has been the position taken by the business witnesses who have testified so far. Most union leaders, on the other hand, have endorsed the administration bill. They have made it clear they aren't in love with every provision of it, but support it as a means of getting rid of Taft-Hartley quick.

SELL LAND TO SECURE TAXES

Waynesburg, Pa., Feb. 11 (P)—Sale of thousands of acres of coal land, seized for non-payment of taxes from 1932 to 1945, is expected to net Greene county $250,000 to $300,000.

William H. Sayers, head of the tax claim bureau, is handling the deal.

He said the county has accepted a blanket offer from the Emerland Land company, a unit of the Hillman interests, for all Pittsburgh seam coal, as well as all coal suitable for stripping. The sale is subject to court approval.

The tax claim bureau fixes a minimum price for the land based on taxes, costs, penalties and interests. On this basis, it accepts offers and refers the sales to the court.

The 1947 real estate tax sale act gives ex-owners of county-seized property no right of redemption. Previously a former owner could redeem the property as long as it remained in the hands of the county. This sometimes led to difficulty in establishing titles.

High Conviction Rate For Uncle Sam

Washington, Feb. 11 (P)—The Internal Revenue Bureau claimed a record today of 96 convictions for each 100 persons tried for criminal evasion of tax laws.

The bureau said only 13 persons were acquitted out of 328 put on trial during fiscal 1948, ended last June 30.

Extra-tax, interest and penalty assessments imposed in that period as a result of investigations of income and excess profits tax returns reached a record high of $1,405,624,010, the bureau's annual report showed.

Appeal Denied On Black Mart Sentence

Philadelphia, Feb. 11 (P)—Mendel Katz, 55, of Scranton, Pa., has been denied an appeal from his conviction and five-year sentence for black market operations in counterfeit sugar ration stamps while OPA was in effect.

The Third U. S. Circuit Court yesterday in an unanimous decision denied Katz' petition to set aside the conviction and sentence.

The Scranton man is serving the sentence imposed in his home city by Federal District Judge John W. Murphy. Both Murphy and the Third Circuit Court had refused to free him on bail.

The decision written by Judge Gerald McLaughlin said there is no merit in any of the contentions made by Katz. Katz sought a new trial, arguing Judge Murphy had not given him a fair trial. His principal argument was a claim that Murphy unfairly "ragged" his attorney Frank McDonnell, charged the attorney with "improper" tactics at the trial and dubbed him "Peck's bad boy."

NEW COLD WAVE HITS SNOWBOUND MIDWEST AGAIN

(By The Associated Press)

A new cold wave moved into sections of the snowbound western states today and snowslides and minor floods menaced areas in the Pacific northwest.

Strong winds continued to swirl the mountainous snow in the western plains, hampering the reopening of highways and clearing of rail lines. An army troop train remained stalled at Rawlins, Wyo.

But the army, Red Cross and other agencies planned no letup in the fight to save the lives of humans and livestock. The Red Cross at Rawlins had planes ready to make low level flights to drop rations to isolated ranch families. At least 10 families are believed in distress in the area.

The mining town of Burke, Idaho, was reported isolated by a 300-foot wide snow avalanche which buried roads, rail and communication lines. No homes were in the path of the slide, which was estimated 150 feet deep in some places. Early, it was not determined if any travelers were caught in the slide.

Other snowslides in western and northern Idaho yesterday, as temperatures rose, closed several highways. A short wave radio and transmitter was to be dropped today to a construction camp at Anderson Ranch Dam where slides have cut telephone communications and blocked roads. Slides in some areas buried several homes, but no one was injured.

U. S. Highway 30, 30 miles east of Portland, Ore., was cleared of a snow slide yesterday but a huge rock tumbled from a mountain cliff, burying itself four feet into the road and again blocked the transcontinental route.

Floods In Northwest

Minor floods from swollen rivers in the Pacific northwest harassed highway travel throughout Oregon and southeastern Washington. Some homes were evacuated but damage was not heavy. No flooding is expected in the Willamette and Columbia rivers.

Colder weather in Washington continued flood conditions. In Dayton, Wash., three miles of city streets turned to muddy rivers of ice last night as temperatures dropped.

Earlier, children waded home from school in knee-deep water.

A cold wave with rapidly falling temperatures and strong northerly winds moved into Montana and the northern plains. At Cutbank, Mont., the mercury dropped 51 degrees in 12 hours. It fell to 10 below today after a high of 41 yesterday. Readings of 20 below were forecast for Minnesota, 15 below for North Dakota and -10 for South Dakota to-night.

The Union Pacific railroad's Transcontinental main line across southern Wyoming still was snow-blocked and trains were rerouted through Salt Lake City and Denver. More than a score of stalled trains were moved yesterday.

PARTITIONERS WIN IN IRELAND

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 11

(AP)—Supporters of continued partition of Ireland clinched control of Northern Ireland's parliament today in an election fought on the issue of king-or-republic.

Victory of the "King's Men" over proponents of a merger with Eire had been a foregone conclusion, but returns from yesterday's balloting indicated political forces which want to stay in the United Kingdom did even better than they had hoped.

Candidates of the pro-British Union party won seven of the first eight districts reporting, including an upset gain in the Belfast dock district.

Combined with seats from districts where there were no contests, this gave the unionists 27 sure places in the 52-member parliament, to five for the opposition, with 20 districts still unreported.

The unionists had 35 seats in the parliament which was dissolved last month to force a test vote on the king-or-republic issue.

The upset victory in Belfast was scored by Alderman Thomas Cole, who defeated Laborite member of parliament Harry Downey. Downey had been pledged to support the entry of Ulster's six counties into a new republic of Ireland. Cole's margin was 3,674 to 3,390.

Washington, Feb. 11 (AP)—President Truman has denounced Hungary's treatment of Josef Cardinal Mindszenty as "infamous." He described the treason trial of the cardinal as a kangaroo court proceeding which will go down in history as a blot against the nation which carried it on.

Slender Threads Link Russian Espionage In Japan And United States

TESTIMONY BY CHAMBERS MAY BE RE-CHECKED

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Washington, Feb. 11 (P)—A re-check of files in the congressional spy hunt showed today two slender threads linking Russian espionage in Japan and in the United States.

Whittaker Chambers, who says he was a one-time courier for a Red spy ring in America, told the House Un-American Activities committee last year he helped obtain recruits and money for an "apparatus" in Japan in the mid-30's.

And one person Chambers says was in contact with the leaders of that apparatus is mentioned in a report the army released yesterday. The report told of a big Soviet espionage ring in Tokyo that operated from 1933 to 1941 and stole secrets from the Japanese cabinet and German embassy.

May Look Again

There is nothing in the Chambers' testimony to show any definite or close connection between the American ring he served and the network described by the army as probably the all-time boldest and best.

The committee wasn't looking for any tie when it heard Chambers behind locked doors last December. It may look now.

Army and navy intelligence officers were invited to sit in on a meeting this afternoon (2:30 p. m. EST). The main purpose was to discuss ways of improving teamwork between the services and the committee.

Minor Matter Then

But Chairman Wood (D-Ga.) told reporters members were sure to ask about the army's sensational report.

Just where the committee might go from there was uncertain; it could recall Chambers for questioning.

At the time Chambers told about helping organize Soviet espionage operations in Japan, that was a minor, incidental matter. The committee was boring in on what Chambers knew about Red espionage in this country. He had told of getting secrets from high government officials for relay to Moscow.

But his incidental references to Japan now take on more significance in the light of the army report telling how the Russians got some of

Rooming House Is Swept By Flames

Philadelphia, Feb. 11 (P)—A fire that swept the top floor of a four-story rooming house last night drove 35 persons from two dwellings.

Twenty of the persons routed by the flames occupied rooms in the building where the fire occurred. The others were tenants in an adjoining building.

Firemen said the blaze menaced trains operating along the Market street elevated lines, but traffic was not halted.

Fire Captain Adam Stack, 50, was hospitalized with a gash of his right hand, suffered when he attempted to enter the building from a ladder at the third-floor level.

There was no estimate of damage to the building, although Ned White, operator of a barber shop on the first floor, estimated his property loss "at several thousand dollars."

incumbents supported a proposed township consolidation bill. This measure would have reduced the number of townships in the state from about 1,500 to approximately 500. The legislature did not pass the measure.

Opposes Allocation

The two-day meeting got underway yesterday, with about 400 delegates present. "Local government" was the theme of most of the first day's talks.

Joe R. Thomas of Hayesville, O., president of the Ohio association of township trustees and clerks, declared "the closer you keep the government to the people, the better that government is."

H. A. Thomson of Delaware county, secretary of the Pennsylvania group, spoke against the planned allocation of funds from the state's new gasoline tax bill.

"However," he said, "we feel the tax increase is needed."

Delegates were present from every county in the commonwealth except Philadelphia, which has no townships.

Yellowstone National Park is the oldest and largest national park in the United States, two and one-half times as large as Rhode Island.

AIRLINES JOIN FIGHT AGAINST GASOLINE TAX

Harrisburg, Feb. 11 (P)—Pennsylvania's oil industry today gained the support of nine airlines in the fight against a proposed one-cent a gallon boost in the commonwealth's gasoline tax.

The proposed liquid fuel tax increase, although limited to one cent per gallon, becomes prohibitive when added to already existing costs borne by the airlines," Warren Lee Pierson, chairman of the board of Trans World Airlines, said in a statement for the nine concerns.

However, Rep. Charles H. Brunner, Jr., Republican House leader, was quick to reply "they should know better" when he was informed of the airlines' stand.

Taxes Earmarked

Brunner pointed out that Pennsylvania's constitution provides that all receipts of taxes on aviation gasoline be earmarked for aeronautical purposes. It is used by the Pennsylvania Aeronautics commission for administrative purposes and to build and maintain aviation facilities.

In opposing the increase, Pierson said "all of Pennsylvania's border ing states recognize that aviation fuel should not be taxed. These states have provided either tax exemption or full refund chiefly because gasoline taxes are for highway usage."

He added that the airlines now pay activity fees for the use of public airports, rental for airport building space, hangers and storage as well as special charges for other services.

$400,000 a Year

Gov. James H. Duff's budget listed $825,000 in aviation fuel taxes in the current two years. He estimated that there would be $800,000 available in the next two years without an increase in the present four-cent tax. Tax receipts from aviation gasoline totaled more than $25,000 in January.

Pierson said the airlines joining in his statement were All American Airways, American Airlines, Capital Airlines, Colonial Airlines, Eastern Airlines, Northwest Airlines, Trans

World Airline and United Airlines. All are certified to operate in Pennsylvania.

Chapter 28

David Warren sat in the living room with his shoes off, letting his feet down for the first time in years. His face was a picture of dejection. He was alone now and could let himself go. Minniebelle and Betty upstairs getting dressed to meet ladies who would soon be coming to inform him that he was about to accept the nomination for mayor. Minniebelle's insistence, he had on a button shirt for the occasion and the collar was too tight, everything, in fact, was wrong—everything. He couldn't even move away from it all, what with his feet in a cast and pain him like very devil itself. And he couldn't remember a word of the beautiful speech which he had written and made him memorize.

He would do well to stand up with aid of a walking stick to greet committee women when they arrived. Minniebelle would be terribly disappointed in him.

Up until two weeks ago, when the accident occurred, he hadn't missed a single day in the post office for whole years.

He glanced down at the injured foot which was stretched out on a cushion in front of him. Minniebelle had put a clean white bandage over the cast.

The least he could do for her was accept the nomination for mayor.

Accepting the nomination, of course, is equivalent to being elected, in his town. Everything would be in his bag, so to speak. He wished it were mailbag.

Meanwhile Minniebelle sat rigidly in front of her dressing table, using her face lightly with pre-arranged chalk. She did not look happy; presently she got up and went into her room.

Betty, who was sitting by a window reading a magazine, looked up and smiled, but there was no answering smile from her aunt.

"I see you're ready, dear," said Aunt Minniebelle.

"You look very sweet in that brown dress. We might as well go down and sit with your uncle while we wait. I don't like to leave him alone too much—poor him. Besides, the committee ladies will be coming very soon now and I'm sure he'll want to rehearse his speech of acceptance once more."

Betty started to get up, but when he saw that her aunt had seated herself on the bed, she sat down again. Evidently Aunt Minniebelle had something on her mind and wanted to talk. Aunt Minniebelle did not hesitate a minute; then she said in a voice that was notable for its lack of poise:

"I don't know what's come over me, Bettina. He's changed a lot.

It's—er—sort of embarrassing. All of a sudden he wants to be—er—big shot, as you young people say."

Betty could not keep from smiling, as she said seriously enough, "I thought it was you that wanted him to be a big shot. You were the one that wanted him to be mayor. Even when I first came here you were suggesting it. Remember?"

Minniebelle did not deny it. "Yes," she said. "I remember it very well. But things were different then. I wanted it for—er—Gertrude's sake."

"And then?" Betty prompted when her aunt paused.

"I'd like for him to have a chance to do some of the things he's always wanted to do," Minniebelle said.

"You know Putter around the house, although he probably will wreck the place, he's so clumsy, bless his heart—work in the garden, and maybe go fishing when he wants to."

There was the sound of a car on the gravelled driveway, so Betty and Minniebelle hurried downstairs.

"We'll wait in the living room with your uncle," Minniebelle told her niece, "till the doorknob rings. They'll come in by the front door this time."

"Yes," said Betty. "After all, this is an—er—auspicious occasion."

"And they won't come until the entire group arrives. I heard only one car, so they'll wait for the others. We'll have a few minutes with David. Maybe we can help him rehearse his speech. It's quite short. I wrote it that way on purpose. He did very well with it last night, though he didn't put quite enough expression into it."

David, in the living room, wiped the frown off his face and managed to achieve something resembling a broad smile. He had heard the car on the driveway and now his womenfolk were coming downstairs.

In a little while, he reflected, it would all be over and he would have committed himself to a job he would hate. He would even hate himself, but that didn't matter too much. The important thing was to stick my neck out."

Newton's answer was evasive. Betty's in love with somebody else," he said. "She's engaged. She told me so."

"Fiddlesticks! I guess I just made a mistake. Should have minded my own business."

Minniebelle came over and laid a hand on her husband's shoulder. "Now don't get excited, dear. It's bad for your leg. It's all my fault anyhow."

She glanced first at Betty, then at the doctor. "Don't blame David," she said in an apologetic tone. "I thought you were in love. In fact I was sure of it—at least I thought I was sure. I told David, I told him it was just a series of misunderstandings that was keeping you apart. I—I thought if we gave you a start in the right direction, you'd go on from there. I—I didn't mean for him to be so—so abrupt."

It was clear that Minniebelle was on the verge of tears over her husband's clumsiness in handling such a delicate situation. But she did not add the proverbial wifely: "I might have known he would do this to me."

"I don't care," David snapped. "Don't care if I was abrupt. If they're not in love they ought to be. I never saw a couple that suited each other any better. Stubborn as all get-out—the two of them."

"We are in love," said George Newton, taking a step toward Betty. "At least I am."

"Yes, we are in love," she repeated, parrotlike, meeting him halfway. "At least I am."

"This is a silly conversation," Betty thought. "All theory and no sense."

But it began to make sense—ghastly sense—when David said in that same blustering manner:

"Take you and Betty for instance. Doc. You're in love with each other. You do nothing about it because you think it's no use. Think you're mighty smart. Think you know what goes on in each other's mind. Heck—you're a couple of young fools."

Betty clutched wildly at the pan of water she was holding. She had almost spilled its contents on the living room rug. Minniebelle came over and took the pan away from her, saying to her husband:

"Yes, dear, they certainly are. I've been thinking as much for a long time."

"Well!" Betty exploded. "Well! I like that, I must say!"

David lifted a warning finger. "You keep your mouth shut, Betty. You've had your turn. You told us off a while ago. We sat here and took it, didn't open our mouths. Took your advice, too. Now you keep quiet."

He addressed his wife. "You keep quiet too, Minniebelle. You women-folks stay out of this. I asked Doc Newton another question and he hasn't answered yet. He couldn't with you women butting in. I asked him how a man knows he doesn't have a thing when he doesn't bother to go after it." Something suspiciously like a grin crossed David's face, but it was gone so quickly that no one noticed it. "Till I hear from the Doc's precinct I'm not sure myself how things stand."

"I'm sure" Minniebelle said, defying her husband's order to keep quiet.

It wouldn't have meant too much to her either, had she loved Jack. But she knew now that she did not love him, never could. She had discovered that she could not say, "I will love, or I won't love," and expect her stubborn heart to obey.

In any case, she did not want to see George Newton. He must have realized she was incapable of knowing her own mind.

Nevertheless, when Aunt Minniebelle called her down to the living room to help Doctor Newton dress Uncle Dave's knee, she could not refuse. To do so would have been childish and silly.

Now, as she stood holding an unnecessary pan of water and feeling quite superfluous herself, she wondered why she'd been called.

Doctor Newton didn't need any help with a mere bandage. Besides, what was wrong with Aunt Minniebelle lending a hand? She was just sitting there, pretending to knit—Aunt Minniebelle, who considered knitting the lowest form of procrastination!—and looking for all the world like the cat that swallowed the cream. Uncle Dave looked smug too.

"I guess you've heard the news, Doctor Newton," Minniebelle said presently, folding up her work and putting it into the knitting bag. "David isn't accepting the nomination for mayor."

Newton, who was bending over the injured knee, looked around. "No, Mrs. Warren, I hadn't heard that."

He appeared puzzled. "I understand the thing was all set. I'm sure everyone around town thought so."

"Fiddlesticks!" exclaimed David. "Sometimes people don't know whether they're agreeable to an idea or not. Sometimes they have to be told what they want."

"Oh, no dear," Minniebelle corrected him. "We wanted the same thing, but we just didn't know it. However, it amounts to the same."

"And then?" Betty prompted when her aunt paused.

"I'd like for him to have a chance to do some of the things he's always wanted to do," Minniebelle said.

"You know Putter around the house, although he probably will wreck the place, he's so clumsy, bless his heart—work in the garden, and maybe go fishing when he wants to."

In any case, she did not want to see George Newton. He must have realized she was incapable of knowing her own mind.

Nevertheless, when Aunt Minniebelle called her down to the living room to help Doctor Newton dress Uncle Dave's knee, she could not refuse. To do so would have been childish and silly.

Now, as she stood holding an unnecessary pan of water and feeling quite superfluous herself, she wondered why she'd been called.

Doctor Newton's fingers fumbled, his hand slipped, and he pulled the bandage too tight.

"Ouch!" David shouted, drawing his leg away. "You don't have to murder me, do you, Doc?"

"Sorry—terribly sorry, Mr. Warren." Newton endeavored to readjust the bandage, but his hand slipped again. So he gave up for the time being and stood by David's chair, his eyes fixed on Betty's face, but it was gone so quickly that no one noticed it. "Till I hear from the Doc's precinct I'm not sure myself how things stand."

"I'm sure" Minniebelle said, defying her husband's order to keep quiet.

It wouldn't have meant too much to her either, had she loved Jack. But she knew now that she did not love him, never could. She had discovered that she could not say, "I will love, or I won't love," and expect her stubborn heart to obey.

NEW BUILDING AUTHORITY FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS NEAR FINAL VOTE of Representatives, who serve without additional compensation.

Under the new measure, as sponsored by Sens. Frederick L. Homscher (R-Lancaster) and Paul L. Wagner (R-Schuylkill), would set up an authority composed of the state superintendent of public instruction and four appointees of the Governor.

To Cost $300,000

The members appointed by the Governor would each receive $5,000 a year with the chairman getting an additional $500. The original members would be appointed for four, six, and eight and 10 year terms.

Meanwhile, the present authority is awaiting a court determination of the constitutionality of the 1947 law that created it. The authority was set up to build public schools through the sales of bonds.

The bonds would be paid off and the speaker of the state House through rentals paid by local school districts. So far, none of the bonds have been sold. Gov. James H. Duff's budget includes a $300,000 item for the authority in the next two years. In 1947, the appropriation was $100,000.

Under the Senate measure, the authority would be permitted to equip and furnish new schools as well as build and improve them. It also would include physical education facilities, such as a gymnasium or stadium, in the definition of a school building.

Other Provisions

Other new provisions would allow the authority to issue negotiable notes, refunding bonds and other obligations as well as bonds; make them securities which the state, municipalities, trust funds, insurance companies and the public school employees retirement fund can buy; require approval of building projects by the state superintendent of public instruction instead of the Governor.

Allow the authority to lease the new schools to local districts for as long as 40 years instead of the present thirty; authorize the sale of authority bonds at either public or private sale instead of requiring that they be sold to the highest bidder after advertisement; allow the authority to use the department of property and supplies as a building agency, and another proposal up for a final vote next week would permit local school districts to form

HUGE CONVEYOR TO CARRY IRON ORE 130 MILES

Cleveland, Feb. 11 (P)—Plans have been announced for a 130-mile system of conveyor belts to haul iron ore from the Great Lakes to the Ohio river steel mills. The belts would carry up to 20,000,000 tons of Ohio river coal a year on the return trip back to the Lakes.

H. B. Stewart, Jr., president of the Akron, Canton and Youngstown railroad, announced formation of the new corporation, Riverlake Belt Conveyor Lines, Inc.

The conveyor system, all elevated at least 22 feet, would cost $154,000,000 and would take 32,000,000 man hours, and at least three years to build. Terminal facilities at Lorain, Ohio, on Lake Erie, and at East Liverpool, Ohio, on the Ohio river, are estimated at a cost of $56,000,000.

To Use Private Capital
Private capital will finance the project, Stewart said, and there will be no public offering of stock. Right-of-way for the elevated, enclosed belt system will be sought through the Ohio state government, Stewart said.

Another scheme for linking the lakes and the Ohio, this one by a canal to the east of the proposed belt system, has also been discussed from time to time. Stewart says the belt system can convey ore and coal more cheaply than the suggested canal, although both would be cheaper than by rail.

Stewart estimates that if 15,000,000 tons of coal are carried by the belt annually, the new system can cut $1.06 a ton from the rail cost of carrying coal from the Ohio river to Cleveland or Lorain. The saving would be $1.50 a ton on the 20,000,000 ton annual total.

To Pay Off In 20 Years
Belt conveyance of iron ore from Lake Erie to Youngstown would be 47 cents a ton less than rail charges, on a 15,000,000 ton annual total, or 60 cents on a 32,000,000 ton annual maximum capacity, he said. Savings on ore to upstream Ohio river steel mills by belt and barge would be 53 to 66 cents a ton from rail rates, he estimated.

Stewart said the two-way haul of iron ore and coal should pay off the cost of building the conveyor belt system within 20 years. The belts will have total annual capacity of 52 million tons, and can operate profitably at 300 million tons.

Terminal facilities would speed turn-around time for lake ore vessels, and for storing and handling coal and ore on the Ohio river. A coal washing plant is designed to clean and grade coal.
